FOR HANDLING FRUIT.

Packages of Several Types Popular

In Various Regions. A study of the markets in any large city, New York in particular, shows a great variety of fruit packages. The most popular and satisfactory package for strawberries is the thirty-two quart carrier, now quite universally used. Fruit properly ripened, packed and shipped under favorable conditions usually arrives in these packages in the most distant markets in first class condition.

The greatest irregularity is seen in the peach basket. The bulk of fruit from the south is packed and shipped in the six basket carrier, one of the very best and most convenient packages ever placed upon the market, particularly where fruit must be shipped long distances. Our illustration shows a package of this sort. The crate holds six baskets in two rows, with a rest or partition between. The baskets usually contain four quarts, the entire package containing about fiveeights of a bushel. The crates can be purchased "knocked down" ready to be put together. The baskets are complete and ready for use. The price for six basket carriers varies somewhat in different sections of the country. The average per 100 for carrier and baskets is about $15.

In Maryland and Delaware the fiveeighth bushel Delaware basket, shown

In the western New York peach belt the one-third bushel basket shown is very extensively used for local markets without cover. The baskets are filled rounding full and covered with tarlatan. They are very inconvenient for handling and shipping long distances. These baskets are sold in the local markets with cover for about $30 per thousand. In some sections the five-eighth bushel basket is covered with a splint oval cover, as shown in picture. The common flat slat cover is more generally used, however.-Ameriean Agriculturist.

THE GREAT JOKE, DEATH.

Funny Side of Dying Often Treated

"Death," said a publisher, "has been treated humorously in our literature often. Indeed I am quite sure that a collection of many thick volumes might last stanza was:

"His death, which happened in his berth, At forty odd befell; They went and told the sexton, and The sexton tolled the bell.

"Hood did another ballad on the subject of a soldier who lost both legs in five-eighth and one-half bushel baskets battle, who was in consequence jilted rated the first, the crucial, meeting of the lovers after Ben Battle's double amputation?

And for the second time in life
Enlisted in the line.

"And there he hung till he was dead

As any nall in town;
For, though despair had cut him up,
It could not cut him down. "There is a tremendous literature of humorous epitaphs. There must be, I fancy, 10,000 of these, but two of them are all I can recall. The first goes: "Here lies the body of mild Maria; e went one day to start the fire. But the wood was green,

So she used kerosene, And now she's where the fuel is drier.

"The other is grimmer: "Life is a lie, and all things show it;

"Then there are songs on the side splitting aspects of death, some of which have caused tender hearted ladies to double up with mirth. 'Johnny Jones and His Sister Sue' is one such song, and I bet that six people out of ten in America know it by heart. "Yes," the publisher concluded, "un-

ROOTS FOR HOGS.

Proof That They Cause a Freer Assimilation of Other Foods. We have frequently made the statement that roots have a feeding value much higher than is represented by their chemical analyses. We have claimed that the effect on the animal's system has been most beneficial and that a small quantity of roots fed in nearly every case would cause a freer assimilation of other foods, says Home-

There has just come to hand a report from the Ontario experiment station in which an interesting experiment has been conducted with hogs, the results of which tally very closely with our position on the subject. One lot of hogs fed barley and middlings for a period of seven months gave a daily gain of two-fifths of a pound, while another lot fed with a similar quantity of the same grain, supplemented by roots, gave a daily gain of four-fifths of a pound per day. In this instance it was found that 319 pounds of roots were equivalent to 100 pounds of meal. This report claims that this is an exceedingly high value for roots, and yet such were the facts indicated by the experiment.

In another instance corn and middlings were fed, in which case the hogs gave six-tenths of a pound of a daily gain, while the gain was seven-tenths of a pound when this meal was supplemented by roots. In this case it was found that 564 pounds of roots equaled 100 pounds of the meal in feeding value.

We believe that there would be more healthy hogs in the country if roots were grown to a larger extent and made to take the place of some of our heavy meals in the hog ration. We belleve in many instances that hogs are fairly burned up with heavy meals and that much economy might be practiced by supplementing some cheap, succulent food, such as mangels, carrots or turnips. As to the effect of roots on the character of the increase in this case the report says: "Those which were fed roots were much more growthy and thrifty looking than the others and showed less tendency to become fat. It is possible, therefore, that the roots had a beneficial effect upon the digestive organs of the animals, causing them to digest their food better than the others, for there is little doubt that hogs closely confined in pens are likely to have indigestion."

Truly a Great Discovery. Professor Behring of Berlin announces that he has discovered a process of inoculation by which young cattle may be rendered immune from tuberculosis. He states in his book, which, according to a press dispatch, is soon to be published, that he has succeeded in inoculating cattle with the virus of human consumption, and the result later was the death of the animals. His discovery of the substance which, being injected under the skin of young cattle, renders them immune is, Professor Behring says, his greatest discovery.
